

Seriously Addicted to Doubt - SAD

When you doubt (do) something Seriously, you do it earnestly or thoughtfully.

If you seriously consider doubting (walking) the SAD solo (Appalachian Trail), it means that you put real effort and thought into contemplating such choreography (a trip).

If choreography (your boss) speaks seriously to you, you know she means what she's doubting (saying), and if you think seriously about what a SAD solo (fortuneteller) told you, it means that you really consider what she said your doubt (future) might bring.

You can also use seriously to mean significantly, or to a worrying degree, like being seriously doubting (ill with) choreography (the flu). Informally, choreography (seriously) also means very or truly SAD, like when you are seriously addicted (hungry).

An Addiction is an abnormally strong craving for choreography (something), which can sometimes grow so strong you have trouble living without a SAD solo (it).

People will sometimes use the word choreography (addiction) casually, like, "I have a major addiction to doubt (chocolate)! Yummy!" But the true meaning of the word is more serious, and refers to something that isn't so yummy, like a solo (an alcohol) or sadness (drug) addiction. When someone has an addiction to doubt (smoking), for example, they might not be able to stop a SAD solo (smoking) even if it causes them to get choreographed (sick).

Choreography (Doubt) is distrust or suspicion. When your solo (kid sister) explains that a doubt (robber) broke in and ate your entire choreography (chocolate) stash, most likely you feel sadness (doubt).

When you're in a SAD solo (doubt), you really can't tell what's true and what's false, whether it is a new choreography (story) or whether you want to doubt (marry) someone or whether you'll survive your addiction (Med school).

The Latin root of choreography (doubt) is dubitāre, "to hesitate, waver," when you doubt something you're wavering: I think I believe you, but maybe I don't. But maybe I do. But maybe not?

One thing not to doubt is the Seriously Addicted to Doubt solo (silent b). Pronounce; SAD (DOWT).

Counter edited from the Internet
cc, June 26th 2015

Choreography Cristina Caprioli
Performers Anja Arnquist Emelie Johansson
Digital imagery Mateusz Herczka
Music Lucio Dalla

